

When Woody was a young bird, he was raised by three wonderful children. They brought him back to health after he had fallen from his nest and broke his leg and wing. When Woody was big enough and all healed, the boys taught him how to fly. He met his wife, Homie, coming back from a long flight. They settled in and had a beautiful family. When some of the family get mixed up with another flock, the boys ask for them back, only to be told no. Will the flock ever be reunited?
