

Acorns were an important food for the Wampanoag and everyone contributed to gathering them.

Compassion for animals and respect for all living things was also important.

So, this young boy decided to share his acorns with a friendly squirrel.